Spring time is near!
We here at the Bartlett House love Spring time!
All of us enjoy activities outside in the sun.

We are looking forward to the Spring time flowers blooming, and all the outside activities. We enjoy making bird feeders and planting new bulbs to enjoy as well.

As always we are open for volunteers and any other activity ideas you may have or want to share.

We have lots of Residents’ Birthdays to celebrate this month.
Please let the staff, know if you are interested in any party planning, or if you will want to bring in family, food, or if you will be taking your loved one out.
We would love to help prepare or plan with you if needed.
Any questions or concerns Please let Christina or the staff know.

A Support Guide for Caregivers
By Ava M. Stinnett

Whether it happens gradually or overnight, there’s a distinct possibility that one day you will become a caregiver for a loved one. It may be for a parent, a spouse, or even one of your children. According to the National Alliance for Caregiving, there are over 65 million unpaid caregivers of adults aged 65 and older in the United States. Often, there’s very little preparation for the daily challenges that caregivers face.

There are numerous city and state education programs and services to address the needs of those who provide long-term care for loved ones at home. You’ll also find many wonderful books that address the topic of caregiving. But what about those times when you need to talk to someone who is traveling a parallel journey, another caregiver who can offer not just a sympathetic ear but a possible solution to a challenge? A support group—whether it’s a local set of folks who meet regularly or an online group—may be the perfect solution. The Alzheimer’s Association, the Family Caregiver Alliance, A Place for Mom, and Eldercare Locator are just a few of many online organizations that provide valuable information and links to support groups.

You may also be able to locate a support group on Facebook. Numerous private groups (new members must be approved by the group’s administrator) allow community members to reach out to other caregivers. Some members are new to being care partners, while others have already made the climb and broken the trail for those who are following behind them.

Perhaps what is most helpful in these communities is an open forum for the types of questions, comments, and emotional support that one may not find in a best-selling book. For example, practical questions, such as how to manage doctor’s appointments, insurance paperwork, and how to take time off work are addressed. But there are also very poignant and soul-searching posts, such as:

- “I miss my mom, even though she’s asleep in the next room.”

Lemon Cream Cheese Cookies

Ingredients:
- 1/2 cup butter, room temperature
- 1/4 cup cream cheese, room temperature
- 1 cup sugar
- 1 large egg
- 1/2 teaspoon vanilla
- 2 tablespoons lemon zest
- 3 tablespoons fresh lemon juice
- 2 3/4 cups flour, divided
- 2 teaspoons cornstarch
- 1 teaspoon baking soda
- 1/4 teaspoon salt
- Cooking spray

Directions
1. Cream butter and cream cheese in the bowl of a stand mixer. Mix in sugar, egg, and vanilla until fluffy.
2. Add lemon zest, lemon juice, half the flour, cornstarch, baking soda, and salt to the mixture and combine well. Stir in remaining flour.
3. Cover and chill for 1 hour or until firm.
4. Preheat oven to 350°F. Spray a baking sheet with cooking spray.
5. Roll dough into 1 1/2-inch balls and place on prepared baking sheet.
6. Bake 8–10 minutes.

Makes about 2 dozen

- “How do I tell my husband that I’ve decided to have someone come in for a few hours a day while I’m at work? I’m exhausted and could really use some help but I don’t want to upset him.”
- “My mom is receiving birthday cards from friends who may not be aware of her Alzheimer’s diagnosis. Should I let them know and if so, how?”
- “My dad seems lonely and fearful and follows me from room to room. I’ve assured him that he’s safe and that I’ll always be here. How do I deal with the resentment that’s building because other family members aren’t here to help out?”

Sometimes, just knowing that you’re not alone is all it takes to stay the course.

A Spot of Tea
Keep your afternoon open on the third Tuesday in March for Tea for Two Tuesday. Afternoon tea was invented in England by the seventh Duchess of Bedford in 1840. She found she was always hungry for a snack around four in the afternoon. Her solution was an afternoon tea break, which evolved into more formal social gatherings that gained popularity amongst England’s upper classes.

This “low” tea is a fancy affair typically served early, around four o’clock, long before dinner, complete with finger sandwiches and walks in the garden. High tea was most often for the middle and lower classes. It was served later in place of dinner, with tea and a much heavier meal. The terms low and high come from the height of the tables the tea is served on. Low tea is served in a parlor or drawing room on a low table. High tea was served on a high-legged dinner table. Low or high, Earl Grey or English breakfast, caffeinated or decaf, enjoy the pleasures of your afternoon spot of tea.

The Pilots of Tuskegee
On March 19, 1941, the U.S. War Department established the 99th Pursuit Squadron, which became famously known as the Tuskegee Airmen. America’s first African American pilots made up the squadron. African Americans had hitherto been banned from high-ranking military positions, but several historically black colleges joined the Civilian Pilot Training Program, a program created by Congress in 1939 to train pilots. President Franklin D. Roosevelt authorized the enlistment of these black aviators, which led to an all-black fighter pilot unit, trained at the Tuskegee Institute in Alabama. The pilots confronted racism at home and put their lives on the line abroad, but their success record was exemplary during World War II, paving the way to President Truman’s desegregation of the military.
